

Skin Cancer Expert Dr. Jennifer L. Herrmann Joins Staff at Moy-Fincher-Chipps Facial Plastics & Dermatology

Moy-Fincher-Chipps Facial Plastics & Dermatology is pleased to announce Jennifer L. Herrmann, M.D. as a new partner in their practice. As a board certified and fellowship-trained dermatologic surgeon, she brings expertise in the treatment of skin cancer using Mohs micrographic surgery and in cosmetic dermatology. For added patient convenience, Dr. Herrmann is offering appointments on Saturdays.

Dr. Herrmann graduated summa cum laude from Princeton University and earned her medical degree from Harvard University. She completed her residency at the University of Alabama where she pursued a fellowship in cutaneous oncology (skin cancer), was awarded the Walter P. Little Award for excellence in dermatology, and served as Chief Resident during her final year. She completed her Mohs micrographic and cosmetic surgery fellowship at the University of California, San Francisco.

"Everyone at Moy-Fincher-Chipps is delighted that Dr. Herrmann is joining our practice as a dermatologic surgeon," said Dr. Ronald Moy, M.D., a founding partner. "Her warm personality, attention to detail, and accessibility to patients make her a wonderful addition to our team."

Dr. Herrmann has received numerous research grants, has lectured to colleagues and the public on skin health, and has published more than 20 peer-reviewed studies and book chapters.

With a particular interest in skin cancer prevention and early detection, she has organized multiple educational events, skin cancer screenings, and led the effort to successfully pass legislation that protects minors from the dangers of indoor tanning beds. "With 1 in 5 Americans eventually developing skin cancer, I think it's critical to not only expertly treat these cancers but also to help prevent them in the first place. Today, there is so much more we can do than just recommend sunscreen for skin cancer prevention. From topical repair products that actually help reverse damage to laser resurfacing, I'm thrilled to join a practice that embraces innovation and where I have access to the latest research, tools, and techniques. At Moy-Fincher-Chipps, I can do so much more than just treat disease. I can commit to offering my patients the comprehensive care they deserve."
